What is the Accessible Information Standard?

Do you, or someone you care for, have a disability and need help to communicate with hospital staff or to read/understand the information we send to you?

The Accessible Information Standard was introduced to make sure that providers of health and social care services have systems in place to identify and meet a patient's additional communication or information needs.

Organisations must:

1. Identify the communication and information needs of those who use their services
2. Record the communication and information needs they have identified
3. Have a consistent flagging/alert system so that when a member of staff opens the individual's record it is immediately brought to their attention if the person has a communication or information need
4. Meet the patient's communication and information needs identified
5. Share the identified information and communication needs of the patient appropriate.

For us to be able to provide for your communication or information needs you need to tell us what they are.

You can tell us:

How you communicate eg British Sign Language, Makaton etc.

What you need to help you communicate eg hearing aids, an interpreter or a personal listener etc.

How you need us to provide you with written information eg braille, large print, easy read.

What is the best way for us to contact you eg phone call, text message, email or letter.

How can you tell us what your needs are?

There are several ways you can tell us what you need by:

- Telling someone from the appointments team when you are booking an appointment with us
- Telling a member of staff when you arrive in a clinic or the Emergency Department
- By telling the receptionist or nursing staff when you visit the hospital
- By contacting the Head of Patient Inclusion and Experience or the Patient Experience Manager (contact details overleaf)
- By completing a communication webform on our website

Once you have told us exactly what your needs are and what we need to do to support you, an alert will be placed on your electronic patient record that will appear each time a member of staff opens your records, this will enable us to meet your needs.

At our reception desks if you need a BSL interpreter you can also pick up one of our patient communication cards, to show to staff when booking appointments or are a patient on one of our wards.
